

Archaos off again

THE ill-fated Archaos circus, which has already had several performances cancelled last week due to the destruction by wind of its tent, was cancelled again last night, after the company and the Dublin Theatre Festival were advised by independent assessors that high winds in Tallaght made it unsafe to put on the show.

A spokeswoman for the festival said that ticket holders would be offered the alternative of a refund, or replacement tickets for shows running from today to next Sunday, weather permitting.
