Show goes on for steamy circus

A SEXY French circus show has got the go-ahead to perform in Glasgow.

Councillors had watched a special two hour video of the raunchy Circus Archaos.

And they decided: "The show must go on."

Now the circus, which includes topless female acrobats, is set for a 14 day sell-out run at Glasgow Green.

The move comes after council chiefs in Bristol, sensationally AXED the show.

Glasgow's city fathers were also worried so the company laid on the video of a recent Paris performance.

It was seen by four councillors from the licensing sub-committee along with circus producer Adrian Evans.

Afterwards the licensing committee chairman, John Moynes, said:

"The circus will go ahead. We saw nothing to warrant a ban. Some of the performers are true professionals."

He added that the police had no complaints.

Adrian Evans said: "Since all the adverse publicity we have been flooded with enquiries.

"We are looking at a sell-out for all 23 shows with a total of 23,000 attending."

A spokesman for Glasgow District Council said: "People who think they are going to see a naughty show are going to be disappointed."

"The circus is less suggestive than Hot Gossip were."
